Reeds are an EXTREMELY important part of playing a woodwind instrument (minus flute). The quality of the reeds are very important, and Vandoren brand reeds are mid-level reeds made of quality bamboo and last longer than cheaper brands IF the student takes care of them. We will show the students how to care for them, but please double check them at home as well. Reeds are not cheap, but can last a long time if taken care of properly. Please invest in a reed case, they help keep the reeds safe and clean!

The mouthpiece of a clarinet and/or saxophone is critical. A bad mouthpiece can really hinder a student's progress while a quality mouthpiece can help a student tremendously. A mid-quality instrument can sound like a wonderful instrument with a good mouthpiece, as recommended above as "upgrades". These are certainly optional upgrades, but highly recommended. Shop around - try stores like woodwind brasswind, pro-winds, and music123. Email Mrs. Watts with questions!! ☺
